Disabilities Resources at Warner Pacific University

Introduction

Warner Pacific University is committed to honoring and serving God and to developing all members of the body of Christ who come to the University. Specifically, policies and procedures must ensure that students with disabilities will not, on the basis of that disability, be denied equal access to and enjoyment of academic and co-curricular programs or activities or otherwise be subjected to discrimination under programs or activities offered by the University.

Warner Pacific University provides academic adjustments and auxiliary aids for qualifying students consistent with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act along with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and the Americans with Disabilities Act Amendment (ADAA) of 2008.

Any student who has a documented disability that may require accommodation to fully participate in college courses should contact the Disabilities Resource Coordinator (jmccaul@warnerpacific.edu / 503.517.1577 / FAX 503.517.1301), if possible, more than 30 days prior to the beginning of the semester in which you are seeking accommodations. Accommodations may not be provided retroactively to the request, and may take time to implement.

It is the intent of this document to outline policies and procedures that ensure the access of individuals with disabilities to college programs and activities. Appropriate sections of this document will be integrated into other college publications (e.g., brochures, catalog) as necessary to ensure implementation.

C. Person with a disability – means an individual who has a physical or mental impairment that is not transitory and minor (temporary and lasting less than six months), which substantially limits one or more major life activity, has a record of having an impairment, or is regarded as having an impairment.

1. physical disability means any physical or motor condition, anatomic loss, or cosmetic disfigurement, which is caused by bodily injury, birth defect, or illness.

2. mental disability includes (a) developmental disabilities such as mental retardation, autism, or any other neurological conditions; (b) an organic or mental condition that has substantial adverse effects on an individual’s cognitive or volitional functions, such as central nervous system disorders; significant discrepancies among mental functions of an individual, including any mental or psychological disorder; such as head injury; emotional or mental illness; and specific learning disabilities.

3. the term “mental disability” does not include active alcoholism, current drug addiction, or criminal behaviors, and does not include any mental condition, disease or defect that has been successfully asserted by an individual as a defense to any criminal charge.

4. major life activities includes, but is not limited to functions such as caring for oneself, performing manual tasks, walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning, working, and concentrating.

D. Reasonable accommodation – is an adjustment or modification to the learning environment and/or tasks based on the nature of the disability that enables the student to have an equal opportunity to participate in the academic program. The nature of the accommodation is established so as to allow the student to enjoy equal benefits and privileges of the course or program without altering the nature or academic rigor of the program.

Programs include but are not limited to:

Academic majors and degree plans, including online learning, course work and practical; research; occupational training; housing; counseling; financial aid; physical education; athletics; recreation; transportation; student organizations; placement; and other educational programs offered by the University.

Otherwise qualified person with a disability means:

Students with disabilities who meet the academic and technical standards required for admission or participation in Warner Pacific University’s programs and activities cannot be denied access.

RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

In order to ensure full implementations, two aspects must be considered: (a) the right of the individual with a disability to access the program on the basis of criteria that will not unfairly discriminate because of the disability and (b) the right of the University to set and maintain standards for admitting and evaluating the progress of students.

To assure full consideration of both aspects, this document outlines the rights and responsibilities of the University and the rights and responsibilities of students who are qualified individuals with disabilities. On the basis of the policy, procedures will be developed to create a mechanism for analysis and reasonable accommodation.
Rights and Responsibilities of Warner Pacific University

Warner Pacific University recognizes that its responsibility is to identify and maintain the academic and technical standards that are fundamental to providing quality academic programs while ensuring the rights of individuals with disabilities. To meet this obligation, Warner Pacific:

1. has the right to identify and establish the abilities, skills, and knowledge necessary to meet the standards in its programs and to evaluate applicants, students;

2. has the responsibility to ensure that its information and activities are available in accessible formats and facilities;

3. has the responsibility to evaluate program applicants based solely on their abilities. If any evaluation method or criterion unfairly discriminates against an applicant with a disability, the University will seek reasonable alternative;

4. has the responsibility to select and administer tests used to evaluate students so as to best ensure that test results accurately reflect aptitudes or competencies and do not discriminate against an individual with a disability. Test designed to measure specific skills related to fundamental standards are allowable even when those skills are impacted by the disability;

5. has the responsibility to ensure that all of its programs, viewed in their entirety, including but not limited to academic offerings, housing, transportation, student organizations, counseling, and placement are accessible and usable;

6. has the responsibility to make reasonable modifications for a student with a disability in the delivery, instructional method, and evaluation system of a course.

Rights and Responsibilities of Individuals with Disabilities

An individual with a disability has a right to an equal opportunity to participate in and benefit from programs offered at Warner Pacific University. To ensure this right, individuals with disabilities at Warner Pacific:

1. have the same obligations as any other student to meet and maintain the institution’s academic and technical standards, with reasonable accommodations;

2. have the right to an equal opportunity to work or learn. Qualified individuals with a disability have a right to reasonable modifications in aspects of their educational access;

3. have the right to an equal opportunity to participate in and benefit from the academic community. This includes access to services, events, co-curricular activities, housing, and event transportation, when viewed in their entirety, that are comparable to those provided to any student or employee;
4. have the right to information regarding the availability of auxiliary aides and possible modifications as well as procedures for making requests for either;

5. have the responsibility to advocate for their own individual needs and to seek information, counsel, and assistance as necessary to be effective self-advocates;

6. have the responsibility to follow the published procedures for making accommodation requests and to do so in a timely manner with the understanding that some accommodations may take longer to facilitate;

7. have the responsibility to follow published procedures for filing an appeal;

8. have the right to be informed of procedures for initiating further appeal of an institutional decision through external channels.

Requesting Accommodations

Students wanting academic accommodations as a result of having a disability will need to contact the Disabilities Resources Center to request an accommodation plan. Instructors at Warner Pacific University are not required to provide accommodations without an official accommodation plan through the DRC. The student must be prepared to provide medical documentation of the disability with a diagnosis and limitations. The documentation should be current and within the past three years. An IEP is not medical documentation. Some IEP’s do have recent medical documentation that supports the IEP that can be used for the accommodation request.

Service Dogs and Emotional Support Animals

Please register service animals and emotional support animals with the DRC to ensure appropriate accommodations are in place for the student. Appropriate county animal licensing, plus proof of the animal’s good health and current vaccinations administered by a licensed veterinarian, are required. Students with service dogs (or service mini-horses), under the guidelines of the ADA, are responsible for the appropriate behavior, wellness, care, supervision and maintenance of their animals on campus and campus housing. The service animal must be trained to perform a task directly relating to the student’s disability. The service animal must be house-broken and socially trained to act appropriate on campus in a way that does not cause undue disruption to the classroom or other campus environments. Emotional support animals are not service animals under the ADA. Emotional support animals will only be allowed, with proper medical request, in campus housing. Current medical documentation of the disability from a licensed treating provider will be required. Emotional support animals are not to be taken to other areas on the campus. Service animals or emotional support animals that are unhealthy, destructive, disruptive or dangerous, will be removed from the campus. The student will be held financially responsible for the repair of damage to campus property or other expenses that may arise as the result of the animal’s presence on the campus.
